Regular physical activity improves blood circulation, strengthens muscles and increases stamina. It can also reduce stress and improve sleep. Exercise does not always mean going to a gym. Walking, cycling, swimming, playing outdoor games and doing simple stretching exercises can also keep a person fit. However, exercise should be combined with a balanced diet and adequate rest. Books have played an important role in the development of human knowledge. Before modern technology became common, people depended mainly on books and other written records to preserve information. Even today, books remain valuable because they allow readers to explore ideas at their own pace. A good book can introduce a person to different cultures, historical events and ways of thinking. Reading also improves vocabulary and develops the ability to concentrate. Digital books have made reading more convenient because thousands of books can be stored on a single device. However, the value of reading does not depend on whether a book is printed or digital. What matters is the habit of reading and understanding what we read. Students who read regularly often develop better communication skills and become more confident in expressing their ideas.

Q.3 Read the following passage carefully and make notes on it. Also give a suitable title. (4 Marks)

Road safety is a shared responsibility. Every year many accidents occur because people ignore basic traffic rules. Wearing a helmet while riding a two-wheeler and using a seat belt in a car can greatly reduce the risk of serious injury. Drivers should follow speed limits, avoid using mobile phones while driving and obey traffic signals. Pedestrians should use footpaths and zebra crossings whenever possible. Children must learn road safety rules from an early age. Road signs are also important because they provide information and warnings to drivers and pedestrians. Careful behaviour on roads can save lives. Therefore, following traffic rules should not be seen as a burden but as a necessary habit for everyone's safety.
